

WASHINGTON, D.C. APPELLATE ATTORNEY OF THE YEAR WINNER: ADAM UNIKOWSKY, JENNER & BLOCK

Submitted by Adam Unikowsky, Partner.

What is the best advice you have for an aspiring appellate attorney?

Get experience arguing in court early and often. For attorneys at large law firms, handling one or more pro bono appeals early in your career is a great way to get oral argument experience, not to mention a rewarding and memorable experience.

Did you ever leave an oral argument saying to yourself, "I wish I had said this in response"? What would that response have been?

There has never been a single time in my career that I haven't said this to myself after oral argument.
