The session, titled "The (Not So) Big Easy Task: Universal Service Reform," will examine efforts by Congress and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to modernize the Universal Service Fund for the digital age. Panelists will discuss how policymakers can preserve and reform the program at once, and whether industry, consumer groups, and other stakeholders can align on a path forward.

Rebekah co-chairs the firm's Communications, Internet, and Technology Practice. A former FCC legal advisor with more than 25 years of experience in communications law and policy, she advises clients on broadband, telecom transactions, FCC proceeding strategy, and antitrust matters in telecom mergers.
