Congressional Investigations Co-Chair Emily Loeb joined STAFFER, which highlights people who have worked at high-levels of government and in politics, for a conversation about her career in public service and private practice and the evolving world of congressional investigations.

Listen Here

Emily discussed the growing focus of congressional oversight on the private sector, the rising legal risks that accompany a congressional appearance, and the multidisciplinary approach she brings to guiding clients through high-stakes investigations. The conversation also covered her path from campaign field organizer to the White House and the US Department of Justice, including the mentors who guided her along the way.

Emily co-chairs the firm's Congressional Investigations and Government Controversies and Public Policy Litigation practices. Ranked by Chambers USA for her congressional investigations work, she advises corporations, executives, and institutions facing congressional investigations, government inquiries, and politically sensitive controversies.
