

“Time for Hard Questions about Suspension and Debarment,” Law360

Publications

January 27, 2021

In this article, Partner David B. Robbins and co-author Rodney Grandon from Affiliated Monitors Inc. provide analysis on the government’s efforts to draft a unified suspension and debarment rule, which places an administrative exclusion on contractors and removes them from eligibility for further government contracts or grants. This effort takes on enhanced importance in the Biden administration and “comes at a time when American society is asking the hard questions about why our systems and institutions work the way they work and how to reinvigorate confidence in those systems and institutions,” the authors observe.
