The Ethics of Cybersecurity Before, During, and After an Incident

Friday, May 13, 2022

10:00 am – 11:15 am PDT | 12:00 pm – 1:15 pm CDT | 1:00 pm – 2:15 pm EDT | 6:00 pm – 7:15 pm BST

This program will explore an often overlooked aspect of cybersecurity incidents—what are lawyers’ ethical obligations with respect to their entities’ cybersecurity protocols? Lawyers have an ethical obligation to ensure their employers’ security adheres to the Rules of Professional Conduct and any applicable standard of care. We will outline those pre-incident obligations and discuss the obligations once an incident occurs, including the best practices for running a forensic investigation and trying to maintain privilege over the resulting forensic report.

Presenters: Shoba Pillay, John Storino, and Lindsey Lusk.

Why Every Company Is Now a Wireless Company: Making Money and Protecting Corporate Assets in a 5G World

Friday, May 20, 2022

5G is not a fad. The technology can deliver multi-Gbps peak data speeds, ultra-low latency connections, massive network capacity, and more reliable links to the world. These capabilities offer new ways to attract and retain customers. They also hold the potential to disrupt established businesses and spawn new ones. This session will review 5G from the ground up. We'll analyze how and why the rules the FCC establishes today promise to determine both the future of connectivity and the economics of future business.

Presenters: Trey Hanbury, Max Staloff, Xinyue (Dagny) Lu, and Tom Peters.

As companies continue to design and implement diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) initiatives, they need to be mindful of the legal rules that impact how such programs are designed and administered. And when challenges to such efforts arise, companies must also navigate various legal and practical considerations that arise when conducting an internal review or defending such claims. This program will explore the key issues in this fast-developing area and offer best practices for designing, implementing, evaluating, and promoting DEI programs.
