

“Beyond Casinos: Growth Opportunities for Business on Tribal Lands,” Bloomberg Law

Publications

December 22, 2021

Jenner & Block Partner Charles Galbraith and Associate Krystalyn Kinsel discuss the benefits and legal and cultural nuances of partnering with tribes for new business ventures in a recent Bloomberg Law INSIGHT article. In the piece, they discuss a recent venture by a technology company and outline the valuable opportunity Indian Country provides companies beyond simple jurisdictional advantages.

Mr. Galbraith is co-chair of Jenner & Block’s Native American Law Practice and a partner in the Government Controversies and Public Policy Litigation Practice and the Government Relations Practice. He is a citizen of the Navajo Nation with over 15 years of experience helping tribes navigate their unique legal landscape and political relationships in the U.S.

Ms. Kinsel is an associate who focuses her practice on complex litigation and Native American affairs. She is a citizen of the Navajo Nation and her experience ranges from representing the sovereign interests of tribal governments to defending multinational technology companies and federal agencies against civil actions in federal, state, and tribal court.
