

“DOJ Continues to Prioritize Trade Secret Theft by Chinese Actors,” Daily Journal

Publications

October 7, 2022

In an article for the Daily Journal, Partner Brent Caslin and Associate Rachael A. Goldman discuss the theft of trade secrets by actors from China and the Department of Justice’s work with respect to this. The authors write, “it will be interesting to see if misappropriation victims from the U.S. begin engaging the Chinese legal system, bring more civil claims in U.S. courts, or if they continue relying on the DOJ to seek justice when their valuable information is stolen.”

Mr. Caslin is a former co-chair of the firm’s Trade Secrets and Restrictive Covenants Practice. He has written dozens of articles in this subject area and regularly represents clients in trade secret disputes across many different industries.

Ms. Goldman is a member of the firm’s Litigation Department. She focuses her practice on complex commercial litigation across various industries and in both state and federal court.
