

“Carbon Dioxide Capture and Storage: A Pathway for Greenhouse Gas Emission Reductions,” Pratt’s Energy Law Report

Publications

March 7, 2023

By: Steven Siros, Arie T. Feltman-Frank

In this article, Partner Steven Siros, Special Counsel Tatjana Vujic, and Associate Arie Feltman-Frank explain that injecting CO2 underground for long-term storage – a process that can prevent it from migrating upward – is not new. What is new, they observe, is the increased focus on this process as a vital part of meeting CO2 reduction goals. The authors discuss the geological sequestration component of carbon dioxide capture and storage and the associated permitting requirements.
