

Jenner & Block Files Amicus Brief on Behalf of Crypto Council for Innovation in Support of Coinbase’s Mandamus Petition to SEC

News

May 10, 2023

On May 10, Jenner & Block filed an amicus brief on behalf of the Crypto Council for Innovation in support of Coinbase’s petition to compel the SEC to respond to Coinbase’s pending July 2022 rulemaking petition. The brief urges the SEC to initiate rulemaking procedures that will provide fair notice, an opportunity to be heard, and allow for judicial review in due course, noting:

“Unless these stakeholders can rely on clear, consistent guidance—and work within a regulatory framework that makes compliance possible—digital assets, and the growing industry they fuel, will not achieve their full potential in the United States and will be pushed to the other jurisdictions actively seeking to host the next wave of innovation.”

The Jenner & Block team was led by Partners Jeremy Creelan, Michelle Kallen, Laurel Loomis Rimon, and Kayvan Sadeghi with support from Associate Kimberly Castle and Law Clerk Matthew Summers.
