May 15, 2024

Jenner & Block is pleased to announce the fourth edition of Global Investigations Review's (GIR) The Guide to Monitorships. The guide was published in partnership with GIR—a trusted source of worldwide news, analysis, and data on the law and practice of cross-border investigations—and examines monitorships with in-depth insights provided by leading practitioners from across the globe.

Jenner lawyers have served as editors since the guide's inception, with Partners Tony Barkow, Neil Barofsky, Matthew Cipolla, Tom Perrelli, and Erin Schrantz editing this latest edition and Partner Michael Ross contributing. Packed with invaluable insights from authors with first-hand experience working with or as monitors, the guide offers comprehensive guidance on best practices, legal frameworks, and emerging trends in monitorship oversight across borders, sectors, and stages.

According to GIR, “the United States Department of Justice and other agencies have imposed more than 80 monitorships on a variety of companies, including some of the world's best-known names.” This guide seeks to demystify the terrain for those who wish to understand or practice in the space.
