Partner Jeremy Creelan recently spoke with The National Law Journal about Jenner & Block's pro bono work with the Brennan Center for Justice at NYU School of Law. In the article, Jeremy discussed a joint effort in Georgia regarding issues with the state's voter registration cancellation portal.

"We worked with the Secretary of State's office closely to try to identify and patch or eliminate the vulnerabilities that were identified, and then just get assurances that they were remedied, and that the monitoring that needed to go on was happening," Jeremy said. "Over a period of several weeks, we got sufficient comfort that the main vulnerabilities were being addressed, and the penetration testing had been sufficient to at least prevent some of the worst possible scenarios."

The Jenner team working with the Brennan Center includes Partners Joanna Wright, Jason Bradford, and Michelle Kallen, Special Counsel Anand Viswanathan, Associates Alice Kim, Benjamin Malings, and Eleanor Slota and Discovery Attorney Pejman Yousefzadeh.

Co-Chair of Jenner's Fintech and Crypto Assets Practice, Jeremy combines a long record of litigating disputes with extensive regulatory investigations experience. He served as Special Counsel to the Governor in the administration of New York Governor Andrew Cuomo, with a wide portfolio ranging from public ethics and election law to oversight over energy, transportation, and infrastructure project planning after Superstorm Sandy. Jeremy also served as the deputy director of the Democracy Program at the Brennan Center for Justice.
