Panel Discussion Topics

What the Death of Chevron Means for Real Estate & Hospitality

The Supreme Court's 2023-2024 Term upended the administrative state as we knew it when the Court overturned a 40-year precedent that established that courts should defer to federal agencies' interpretations of ambiguous statutes, known as Chevron deference. Our panel will examine the reversal of Chevron, and the significant uncertainty this decision injected into the regulatory landscape. They will discuss how Real Estate and Hospitality businesses facing any form of regulatory scrutiny may experience—and may capitalize on—these developments. They will also preview what big cases are anticipated in the Supreme Court's 2024-2025 Term.

Moderator: Lindsay Harrison, Co-Chair, Real Estate and Hospitality at Jenner & Block

Panelists: Ian Gershengorn, Co-Chair, Appellate and Supreme Court at Jenner & Block; Betsy Henthorne, Partner, Government Controversies and Public Policy Litigation at Jenner & Block; Annie Kastanek, Co-Chair, Appellate and Supreme Court at Jenner & Block; Adam Unikowsky, Partner, Appellate and Supreme Court at Jenner & Block

Election Results and the Stakes for Real Estate & Hospitality

With unique industry and government perspectives, this panel will discuss the impact that the recent election likely will have on certain key issues relevant to the marketplace, including how the election results may direct policies relating to congressional and federal agency actions; antitrust enforcement; transactions in the commercial, residential, and industrial markets; local, state, and federal controls and interferences, among other topics.

Moderator: Andrew Vail, Co-Chair, Real Estate and Hospitality at Jenner & Block

Panelists: Doug Litvack, Co-Chair, Antitrust and Competition Law at Jenner & Block and Former Attorney at the Federal Trade Commission, Bureau of Competition; Emily Loeb, Chair, Congressional Investigations, Co-Chair, Government Controversies and Public Policy Litigation at Jenner & Block, and Former Associate Deputy Attorney General at the US Department of Justice; Anna Meresidis, Co-Chair, Corporate and Co-Chair, Finance at Jenner & Block; Michael Podboy, Co-Founder and Managing Partner at Outrigger Industrial; Jon Skladany, Partner, Congressional Investigations at Jenner & Block and former Senior Advisor to Congressional Republicans

Emerging Trends in Real Estate & Hospitality Disputes

Join us for a lively panel discussion with legal leaders in real estate concerning current developments in disputes and litigation impacting the industry. The discussion will include the latest trends in legal challenges to the industry, including scrutiny of pricing models, biometric and privacy risks, and the ongoing impact of market distress in some sectors.

Moderator: Dan Weiss, Co-Chair, Real Estate and Hospitality at Jenner & Block
