April 15, 2025

Partner Steve Siros was elected to the American College of Environmental Lawyers (ACOEL). The College is “a professional association of distinguished lawyers who practice in the field of environmental law. Membership is by invitation and members are recognized by their peers as preeminent in their field.”

“The College has the great fortune to include the top environmental law practitioners in the United States and, now, Canada,” said ACOEL President Tracy Hester, professor at the University of Houston Law Center and Co-Director of its Environment, Energy and Natural Resources Law Center. “They represent the best of our field, and we’re delighted to welcome them into the College.”

With 25-plus years as an environmental attorney, Steve understands the laws and regulations and potential health and safety risks posed by hazardous substances. As Chair of the firm’s Environmental Practice, Steve advises on everything from regulatory noncompliance matters to contaminated property clean-up to transactions involving environmentally challenged sites.
