In an era defined by geopolitical shifts, heightened regulatory scrutiny and evolving societal expectations, succeeding as a global business requires a new playbook. This panel session explores some of the critical legal pressures shaping today's international business environment, including the rising trend of global hearings, diverging expectations around DEI, differing standards in ESG and a shift in government enforcement priorities. Through case studies and practitioner insights the session will equip attendees with deeper understanding of these global challenges, as well as providing actionable tools and ideas.
